Saven in one Grave.

The remains of seven Confederate sol-diers, who lost their lives during the late war in the battle of Bulltown, Braxton county, are buried in one grave on the battle field at that place. The earth has worn or washed away so that the bones of some of the dead soldiers are exposed. The people of Bulltows and vicinity have undertaken to enclose and cover the grave with cut stone and erect a marble slab at the head bearing the name of each soldier, if the names can be ascertained. Milton Butcher, who belonged to Co. B. 20th Va. Cavalry, assisted in burying them, but he does not remember the names of any. They were all West Virginians and he thinks one of them lived in Marion, one in Roane and one in Webster when the business and were all wellertaken to enclose and cover the gray ster county, but he does not know where the others lived.

Bridgeport re-elected Charles A. Jun-kins, Republican, Mayor; Joseph Mc-Conaughey, Republican, Marshal, and elected a Republican Council. At 2:30 A. M. the counting of the vote was not yet completed. The Brilliant Giass Works

The Brilliant Glass Works.

The Brilliant glass works furnace which recently caved in, has been repaired, and last week making glass was recumed. Only a few days were lost on account of the accident. The factory is busy with a full force on, and Secretary Scott reports a very brisk demand for the fancy colored goods turned out at the Central's Brilliant branch. The company is now turning out there shades and other ware which cannot be surpassed in the country for color, brilliance, quality or shape, and their product has already won its way in the markets to a leading position.

The total vote yesterday was very small. Bad weather was largely the cause. The Telegram had a big trip up yester-day, getting up late and lying here a good while.

A vocal duet, "The Rose and the Nighting als," by Alt, was very well rendered by Miss Nora Kerrisk, of Bermuda, and Miss Mai Tyler, of Elyria, Chio. Their voices blended admirably, while the shading and expression gave evidence of attentive study. Miss Marie Haimel, of New York, sang "Came Bella." Donizetta, with a smoothness and finish which displayed careful trainins, but she did not catch the spirit of her song, and falled to give the effect she is thought capable of producing, "Impatience," by Schubert, was sung remarkably well by Miss Mary Tully, of Parkersburg, who combined lightness and ease of style with much animation, and won for herself unanimous applause. you; if all cotton, he will enlighted guarantee very suit, O record or rair of offer to be lower in price than same quanke can be bought elsewhere. various phrases of the wind's capricious-ness. The composition evidenced much reflection and some imagination, and was read with good inflection and modulation. Miss Bee Olifiord, of Clarksburg, also con-tributed to the entertainment a composi-tion on Smoke, which was carefully and thoughtfully written. Miss Clifford made some good points in comparing smoke some good points in comparing smoke with human lives. Her voice, though not lear, is full in tone, and her reading was creditable.

A trio for the piano, "The Young May Queen," by Louis Meyer, was the first instrumental effort of the evening, and was played very nicely by three little ladies in short skirts—Misses Mamie and Annie Brennan, of New York, and Emma Kerrisk, of Bermuda. Miss Mai Tyler played "The Brooklet," by Spindler, in a very creditable manner. Her touch is clear, and her phrasing and shading good.
